

NEWS TRACKER APPLICATION

Objectives

The foundation of News tracker is the idea of content syndication, which refers to the process through which content produced by one or more news organisations is made available through another organisation.

Introduction

This application is a news app. This programme will monitor international news. Since you can now view news wherever you are, this is superior than old-fashioned newspapers. Live updates will be provided for this. As an editor, you can add your own news to this app, and other users can view your published news as well.

Advantages

- [1] News tracker provides all the information on one page.
- [2] News tracker can be found online in a variety of languages, although those in Hindi and English are the most readily available in our nation.
- [3] It can take a while to routinely check a lot of different websites to see if the content has been updated. Technology used for
- [4] News tracker create a special information space or personal newspaper by minimising the time and effort required to often check websites for changes.
- [5] Switch from tracking to aggregator
- [6] The feeds are frequently in the RSS or Atom formats, which employ Extensible Markup Language (XML) to arrange the information so that it may be compiled in a feed reader and presented in a user-friendly interface.

Disadvantages

- [1] Inaccurate Sources: When commenting on news articles, it's crucial to include a link to the accurate source. Broken links or links that don't get to the actual story, however, can be problematic. Because of this, it's crucial to pay close attention to the information covered when posting any news stories.

[2] No Local News: Local news and events are typically sought after by news readers. However, news aggregator websites that prioritise global news that might not be pertinent to the reader

[3] The sources of news tracker are frequently false, which is its third drawback. There may be some broken links among the sources or links provided in the news. The readers are frequently directed to inappropriate stuff by these broken links. Some readers may find this inappropriate content upsetting, and it occasionally contains viruses that can harm the data on readers' desktops.
